Subject: Microsoft case resolution

To Whom @ Department of Justice,

I understand wanting to be finished with the Microsoft case, but there has been no solution as the current agreement reads. The weak terms of the agreement seem to forget all the non-existent companies who have been killed or absorbed by Microsoft's bully tactics.

I think that the administration is making a huge mistake with the current resolution. Nothing was solved, and no practice has changed, or gone punished. The administration may want to reconsider this settlement if they truly have the interest of both business and technology in mind.

I thank you for providing this opportunity to voice my opinion. I only hope that my state does the same. It seems to be busy enough with its suit on behalf of its assisted suicide rights.

Sincerely,
Andy
